...illiam S. Rislnger, Retiring President, Honors Successor at Session After Which New Head Announces Groups for Year—Circus Representative Talks

Announcement of committees for the 1932-33 season by the new president, George C. Hodges, and installation of Mr. Hodges marked the meeting of Rotary Club at Hotel Utica today.

The incoming president was presented a bouquet for his wife by the retiring president, William S. Rislnger.

"We have heard a great deal about leadership," the retiring president, Mr. Rislnger said, "and many sisters have turned. Rotary has continued in its quiet, unassuming fashion to establish a leadership. Many people have come to look upon our work for level-headed guidance amidst present day difficulties. As long as Rotary continues to bring together a diversity of thought and interests, free from any but the most altruistic and public spirited purposes, a movement is sponsored for true leadership."

After Mr. Rislnger's talk he was led with other past presidents to a table in the corner of the hall. These past presidents were in the line of march: Robert Fraser, J. Edward Waterbury, John L. Train, Francis F. Despard, William J. Reagan, Clarence B. Williams, Charles Albert Miller and Carroll T. Waldron.

George Heimer, club pianist, played selections during dinner.

TWO UTICANS ESCAPE HURTS AT PEEKSKILL

Figuring in one or two accidents within a few minutes at the same intersection near Peekskill, Milton Parker of 1576 Seymour Avenue and Stanley Olinski of 608 Jay Street, both of Utica, escaped injury, according to a dispatch from that city.

A truck and trailer on which they were riding was damaged yesterday. The vehicle is owned by Simon Parker of the Parker Freight Company, 317 Bleecker Street, Utica, the authorities were told.

Walter B. Simmonds of Larchmont, N. Y., accompanied by Mrs. Simmonds, was driving south in a sedan on the Albany Post Road at that point. Simmonds said he had been following another car, which stopped suddenly and caused him to turn out to the left to avoid a crash. As he did so, he crashed with the Utica truck, which had passed a truck wrecked a few minutes before.

A Buffalo truck and Schenectady motorist figured in the earlier collision at the same location, in which the Dorp City man was injured.

Cemetery in Utica And Superintendent Praised in Article

Forest Hill Cemetery and its superintendent, Harold W. Smith, is given special mention in the current issue of the Monument and Cemetery Review.

The article, which is an illustrated one, declares that the local cemetery is a model of artistic planning and ranks high among New State cemeteries.

YORKVILLE MEN FACING CHARGE OF BLACKMAIL

Police Chief Quance Arrests Pair with Box Containing Marked Money

Two Yorkville men are in jail awaiting the action of the grand jury on charges of blackmail due to prompt action by Chief Fred B. Quance, Yorkville, who arrested the pair.

The postmaster of the village, Edward Ellmore, was the intended victim of the plot allegedly made by Steve Wujanik, 19, and Steve Kaczowka, 19, who both have police records, according to Chief Quance.

The two were arrested when they picked up shoe box containing marked money secreted in the flats at a point designated by them about one-half a mile from the Halfway Bridge west of the divide of the trolley line and West Whitesboro Street. The box contained a marked $5 bill.

Arraigned before Justice of the Peace Robert C. Neary in Yorkville last night the men denied charges of blackmail and were ordered held for the grand jury after they waived examination.

Postmaster Ellmore told Chief Quance he received two blackmail notes.

The first note which demanded $900 was mailed on Monday, while the second, asking for $500, was sent Wednesday night. Each letter, he said, contained threats of injury. The postmaster was instructed to place the money under a red shack between 7:30 and 8 last night.

The postal official placed the box in the designated place last night. Wearing a tramp's outfit, Chief Quance secreted himself in nearby bushes.

The watching officer said the two men took the box and had gone about 200 feet before he arrested them. When arrested Kaczowka threw the box in the ditch. At the justice of the peace office, Earle C. Bastow, assistant district attorney; Chief Quance and Police Officer John Kielbassa, New York Mills, questioned the men before they were arraigned.

Wujanik, according to records, was convicted of abduction in 1927 and sentenced to Auburn Prison for from 2½ to 3½ years. He served 1 year and 11 months. The other man was convicted of petit larceny in City Court and of disorderly conduct before Justice of the Peace Neary.

Jobless Musicians Will Get $500 from Concert Proceeds

Immediate distribution of $500 among unemployed musicians and their families will be made by the Civic Musical Society.

This was decided at a meeting in the School Administration yesterday afternoon when it was announced that net proceeds from two benefit concerts held early this month in the Majestic Theater reached a total of $850. The sum of $150 will be held for emergency use. George M. Weaver presided at the meeting. Herrian R. Shute is director of the society.

Radio Fan Admits He's Sap For All Night Convention Vigil, but It Was Lot o' Fun

By THE DEMENTED ONE

Mr. Chairman —er, Mr. Editor. I am, perhaps, just one of four badly demented persons, enthusiasts or what have you, that sat up all night at the radio just to see the Democratic National Convention forget to turn out the lights and go home.

Yes, we heard Chairman Tom Walsh, sounding like the seventh [illegible] ordering a poll of the New York delegation along about dawn this morning, eight hours after we three Democrats and one Republican had sat down for a couple (?) hours of convention flatteries.

Yes, we heard our own M. William Bray and Francis Kernan cast their votes in a resolute tone "for Alfred E. Smith" and we heard Wilbur L. Ridley, of Syracuse do the same thing for the "Happy Warrior" on the first ballot. And we heard Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York City dare to face the possible wrath of the New York Governor by announcing that he, too, would cast his ballot "for Alfred E. Smith."

Whalta Night!

Oh, what a night! But, be easy on us, Mr. Editor, because after all, maybe we weren't the only victims of the ordeal. And, remember that there were some thousands hanging over the gallery railings out in Chicago, besides Huey Long and Will Rogers.

It started off just like any radio party with invitations so you can see that potentially, at least, we were supposed to be possessed of our right senses last night. We didn't mind the scores of "The chair recognizes—," "For what purpose does the gentleman arise," or "the convention will please come to order." In fact, we managed to stay awake better when there wasn't so much order.

Along about 3:30 this morning when we thought it about time for everybody to knock off, they were still nominating candidates and seconding, and booing. Then when Long before dawn made inroads on the bridge light which cast its pale illumination over our party, nothing loud, squalid, or commonplace were engaged, but in broken, nebulous positions. Our senses, the senses of conflict came to life when sounds of conflict came from the air. Each was every [illegible] minutes another's neck hung back over a chair as if broken and the [illegible] half way to dreamland.

The announcers of the NBC and Columbia Systems were stumbling and wandering in their announcements, but still the conflict of Democracy went on. Delegates who had joined in demonstrations lasting from 10 minutes to more than an hour earlier in the evening, were listless in their applause and responses to the chairman.

[illegible] took a new lease on life about 7 a. m. WGY in the midst of the first ballot, announced it was leaving the air until 8:15. We turned to the weaker WFBL and had to put up with a mixture of Democratic ballots and some of Uncle Dan's coup over WIBX.

And so that was to be the end of our all night Vigil—cut off in the middle of the first ballot. Yes, maybe we were jackasses, but if the Democratic convention is still running tonight we may be back there again—provided we get some sleep and good cold water in the meantime.

Democratic and Republican Planks on Prohibition Are Denounced by Dry Speakers

Franklin W. Cristman, Former State Senator, One of Speakers at Allied Forces Meeting

Speakers, headed by Franklin W. Cristman, former state senator, scored the "wet" planks adopted by the Republican and Democrat conventions at a meeting of the Allied Forces for Prohibition in Plymouth Congregational Church last night.

Other speakers included Miss Vida Milholland and Miss Margaret Hamilton of New York City.

A resolution opposing any change in the 18th Amendment and urging stricter enforcement of the law introduced and copies ordered sent to President Hoover and Representative Davenport.

Mr. Cristman denounced the signatures and members of the Association Against the 18th Amendment. In referring to the "wet" planks adopted by the respective conventions, he declared that the "wets had used the economic situation for their purposes."

Miss Hamilton paid a tribute to the late Mrs. Samuel J. Benz, Utica, prominent temperance worker, and stated that the liquor problem was the greatest facing the world today.

Miss Milholland discussed "The Modest Reason Why the 18th Amendment is a Moral Law."

Mrs. Charles A. Coons was chairman and the Rev. Gerald E. Kopf, newly arrived assistant pastor at Plymouth Church, welcomed the assemblage.

In interviews this afternoon Miss Hamilton and Miss Milholland amplified their addresses given last night.

"Perhaps the most salient character of the constitution of the United States," said Miss Hamilton "is its provision against change. In this respect it stands unique among the government documents of the world. The authors of the constitution, such men as George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, Alexander Hamilton, James Madison and the rest, were inspired by a great vision of a great nation leading into new paths of a higher social order where the good of the whole people, not the interests of the few, should be the corner stone of liberty.

"These men realized that to trust to mob psychology and popular appeal bulwarks of hard-won liberty was to build on sand.

"The 18th amendment was written into the constitution after years of hard work against the intrenchment and the liquor elements, by an electorate with the vision of new social responsibilities.

"Let the voters of this country be on their guard against turning our constitution into a 'scrap of paper.' Let the American people not the politicians nor the financial interests speak, and speak emphatically their will, that in this time of economic stress a sober nation politically as well as economically means a great nation."

"As we stated last night," said Miss Milholland, "this whole hullabaloo of wet agitation, this 'nationwide' uprising, as some writers so naively call it, is little more than an artificially stimulated campaign. It is financed for the most part by the liquor interests, and by men of great wealth whose representatives have admitted before the United States Senate committee that a tax of three cents on a glass of beer would relieve them of burdensome corporation taxes by shifting the taxes from their companies to the shoulders of the already burdened workers.

"We recognize this agitation for what it is, a high-pressure advertising campaign on behalf of liquor, but why our government should be bullied into taking side on this question which has already been settled, any more than it should assist any other obsolete industry, I fail to understand.

"Every time this question has been submitted to the people within the last 70 years it has always returned a large dry majority. In 1928 when Mr. Hoover ran against Mr. Smith the main issue was the drink question and Mr. Hoover's majority was overwhelming.

"For over 100 years the finest element of the American people [illegible] traffic, and what quarter did these great leaders ever receive or ask from the powerful United States Brewers Association? None at all. And now that the liquor interests have been beaten in the greatest political victory of all time, they turn to us and ask us to help them to another chance. Our reply is 'Get it if you can.'"

Miss Hamilton [illegible] the publicity committee of the N. Y. State Woman's Committee for Law Enforcement of which Mrs. Henry Peabody is national chairman. Miss Hamilton is a member of one of New York's most distinguished families.

Miss Vida Milholland is a sister of the late Inez Milholland, known as the Joan of Arc of the Suffrage Movement, and daughter of John E. Milholland, one of the former editors of the N. Y. Tribune. She is a leader of civic reform in N. Y. City.

WOMAN GIVES TESTIMONY IN TABER ACTION

Utican Takes Stand in Suit Against Estate of Husband—Says He Failed to Carry Out Promise

Further testimony was heard in Supreme Court today in the suit of Mrs. Emma B. Taber against the estate of her husband, William L. Taber, former president and chairman of the Board of Directors of the Citizen's Trust Company.

Mrs. Taber was called to the witness stand this morning and testified as to her claim that Mr. Taber had failed to carry out a promise to make protection for her future, leaving his estate of nearly a half million dollars to Samuel Earl and Ira D. Taber, sons by a former marriage.

Claims Alterations

Mrs. Taber testified that alterations were made in a typewritten pre-nuptial agreement without her knowledge after she had read the document.

She declared she was to have been given 350 shares of the capital stock of Bay Pond Inc., a timber corporation, valued at approximately $100,000 by Mr. Taber, but instead was allowed only the income from a trust fund of $25,000.

The agreement was introduced in evidence by Mrs. Taber's attorneys, James T. Cross and J. Earl Hanagan. The words: "350 shares of capital stock of" followed by a blank space were crossed out and the words "a note of Bay Pond Inc., dated Dec. 19, 1923, due in 10 years from date with interest of 6 per cent, having an approximate value of $25,000" were substituted in ink.

Mrs. Taber asserted she came to Utica from Herkimer, Feb. 5, 1927, and called at Mr. Taber's office at the Citizens' Trust Company and received a copy of the pre-nuptial agreement from Mr. Taber's secretary, she having read it on a previous occasion. Mrs. Taber said the agreement was handed to her in a sealed envelope and that she placed the envelope unopened in her sister's safe deposit vault and did not open it until after Mr. Taber's death.

The witness asserted there was no handwriting on the page in question when she read it. She said she believed the pre-nuptial agreement was only a temporary arrangement and that it was not intended to deprive her of her dower rights upon the death of Mr. Taber.

Mrs. Lena Loveland, Herkimer, sister of Mrs. Taber, called as a witness yesterday afternoon, told of the wedding in the home of Owen D. Young, and revealed that Mrs. Taber's son, by a former husband, who died, is John W. Elwood, vice-president, National Broadcasting Company, and former secretary, Radio Corporation of America. Mrs. Loveland said that after Mr. Elwood's death his widow maintained herself by engaging in the millinery business in Ilion, and later studied designing in Rochester, and thus sent her son to Amherst and Harvard. She testified Mr. and Mrs. Taber first knew each other as young people in Herkimer.

Describes Talk

Mrs. J. Augustus Smith, Utica, told of a conversation she had with Mr. Taber, soon after his last marriage, in which she said he praised Mrs. Taber and added, "I have provided for her as long as she lives; she will never want for anything." Mrs. Smith said the talk took place at her summer home on the St. Lawrence, where Mr. and Mrs. Taber visited in their private boat.

Mrs. Rose McGinley, Mr. Taber's former private secretary, described a conversation between Mr. Taber and Mrs. Taber relative to the pre-nuptial agreement, in which witness claimed Mr. Taber said it was to be merely a temporary arrangement.

William M. Eldridge, New York City boat broker, testified he sold Mr. Taber a yacht, and Joseph Walsh, who succeeded Mr. Taber as treasurer of Bay Pond Inc., a timbering enterprise in Franklin County, told of the value of Mr. Taber's [illegible] W. Chase Young of Dunmore, Pa., a former [illegible] attorney for the First Citizens' Bank [illegible] left to Mrs. Taber. Stephen W. Brennan represented Samuel E. Taber, and Albert Smith, New York City, appeared on behalf of Ira D. Taber.

Building Formerly Used as School Due To Be Headquarters

Need of Space for Chamber of Commerce Activities Causes Transfer of Office to Assumption Academy—Hudson Declares Location Is Ideal for Group's Activities

Utica Work Bureau headquarters are to be moved from the Chamber of Commerce building to the building formerly occupied by the Assumption Academy, at John and Elizabeth Streets.

The building for many years used as a school for boys is being renovated and prepared for occupancy by the work bureau forces within a few days.

Since organization, the work bureau has occupied practically the entire second floor of the Chamber of Commerce building in Elizabeth Street.

The change in location is being made because of need of the space occupied by the work bureau in connection with chamber activities.

W. F. Hudson, director of the Work Bureau, today expressed the opinion the Assumption Academy building would make an ideal location for bureau activities. He said the committee in charge of procuring headquarters had considered nearly 60 prospective locations.

Although the placements under the Work Bureau have been considerably curtailed during last few weeks, it will be necessary that an office staff be maintained indefinitely for the compilation of records, registry of applicants for work and supervision of relief projects.

Many calls are received at the Work Bureau by those who can provide employment and hundreds have been given positions through the bureau.

Mr. Hudson today said the bureau would continue to supply men for the grading of Oriskany Street West and Halleck's Ravine projects until about the middle of the month but after that time would have on its payrolls only those in the city welfare work, the workshop in Mary Street and an office force.

The women's division of the Work Bureau today reported 369 women in search of employment registered there during June, making 1,885 the total registry of women to July 1.

Mrs. F. L. Walker said 141 women had been placed in permanent positions through the bureau during June and 54 provided temporary employment.

Tramp and Trailers To Have Hike from Clinton to Sauquoit

A hike in connection with the Washington bicentennial will be held from Clinton to Sauquoit by the Tramp and Trail Club July 24.

C. M. T. C. Men Wait Passage of Budget Pending Departure

Citizens' Military Training Camp applicants in this section are awaiting passage by Congress of the War Department bill before proceeding to vacation training camp at Plattsburg.

That the War Department plans to proceed on the theory that its appropriation soon will be passed was evidenced in orders received yesterday by Capt. Selim W. Myers, Utica, unit instructor, 390 Infantry, assigning five reserve officers in this section to Plattsburg training camp as instructors beginning Tuesday.

Those assigned as instructors are First Lieut. John H. Berthold, 1010 South Street; Second Lieut. William Menke, Dorgeville; First Lieut. Henderson C. Lane, Clinton, and Second Lieut. Charles W. Harris, Rome.

Thomas M. Sherman, Jr., 1408 Oneida Street, has been appointed second lieutenant in the Infantry Reserves as a result of service in Staunton Military Academy.
